Licence holder

If the licence holder is different from the applicant, please select “No” and enter the licence holder details here.

If the licence holder is the same as the applicant, please select “Yes” and continue to the Managing Agent question.

If you are unsure who should be the licence holder, please see the definition from the Housing Act 2004: “The proposed licence holder should be a fit and proper person to be the licence holder, and (ii) out of all the persons reasonably available to be the licence holder in respect of the house, the most appropriate person to be the licence holder.”

The name on the Basic Disclosure certificate should be the same as the licence holder.

Proposed licence holder

The 'proposed licence holder' is the person whose name will be on the licence. The proposed licence holder must be the person who is the most appropriate person to hold the licence for the property, and this is likely to be the person who receives the rent. In most cases, this will be the owner even if they have appointed a managing agent to manage the property. Occasionally, it will be necessary for the managing agent to be the licence holder - this would be the case if, for example, the owner is not capable of making decisions about the property.

The licence holder is responsible for management of the property if no separate manager is appointed.

Is the licence holder the same as the applicant? *

- Yes
- No

Managing Agent

Please select the appropriate response to this question.

Note that if both the applicant and licence holder live outside of the UK, a UK-based managing agent must be appointed. If this is the case, please select "Other" and enter the details of the managing agent.

Managing Agent

Is the managing agent: *

- the applicant as detailed above
- the licence holder as detailed above
- other

Note: If the proposed licence holder lives abroad, a UK managing agent MUST be appointed. The managing agent should be capable of managing the property and making decisions for emergency repairs in the event that the licence holder cannot be contacted. A specific condition will be added to the licence to ensure that this happens. A breach of an HMO licence condition can incur an unlimited fine.

Redress scheme

It is a legal requirement for all lettings agents and property managers in England to belong to one of the three Government approved redress schemes from 1 October 2014. Local authorities can impose a fine of up to £5,000 where a lettings agent or property manager who should have joined a scheme has not done so. If you are a letting agent, please select which scheme(s) you belong to - please select all that apply.

- Ombudsman Services Property
- Property Redress Scheme
- The Property Ombudsman

All lettings agents and property managers in England must belong to an approved redress scheme.

If the person appointed to "manage" your property is an individual, such as a friend or relative and they are not operating as a commercial letting agency, they are not required to belong to a redress scheme and you can leave this section blank.

Person having control/bound by licence

If there are any joint owners or financial partners, you should select “Yes” to this question and enter their details here. As part of the licensing process, all people listed here will be sent a draft licence and asked to provide their comments on the proposed licence and conditions.

You can add details for up to five people here. If there are more than five people to enter here, please send the names, addresses contact email and phone number to privatesectorhousing@wychavon.gov.uk quoting the application reference number, property address and the words “Person having control or bound by licence”.

Do not list mortgage providers, long-term tenants or long leaseholders here, these will be entered towards the end of the form.

Tenancies, occupants, flats and habitable rooms

Tenancies – this is the number of tenancy agreements (contracts) that are in place. This is not necessarily the same as the number of occupants or households.

Habitable rooms – please include all rooms that are being rented out as bedrooms or that you intend to rent out as bedrooms. If a living room is being used as a communal area, then you do not need to include it here. Please mark this room and its dimensions on your floorplan.

Occupants – this is the actual number of people you have living in the property. This includes adults and children. This will also be the permitted number of occupants on the licence. If you need to change the number of occupants after the licence has been submitted, you will need to submit an application to vary the licence.

Households – a household is defined as one or more people who are related or a co-habiting couple.

Situation	Number of households
Co-habiting couple with two children	One
A single parent, one child and an unrelated friend	Two
Five unrelated friends	Five

Number of tenancies *

If occupants appear on one tenancy agreement, enter '1', otherwise enter the number of agreements in place. Wychavon District Council's recommended best practice is to supply individual tenancies instead of a shared tenancy.

The licence will be granted for this number unless there is cause to reduce it (for example due to insufficient facilities and/or small room sizes).

Number of households *

Tenants who are members of the same family are one household. Each tenant who is not related or living together as a couple counts an individual household. So, five unrelated tenants will be five households even if there is only one tenancy agreement for the five tenants.
